INTRODUCTION

The Stevenson book is hereby issued in a second edition. The original data was compiled for the first edition by my uncle, Rev. Samuel Harris Stevenson, of Bloomington, Ill., who gave several years of vast labor to collecting it and died before he had arranged it for publication. The arrangement was completed by his son, Rev. R. M. Stevenson, D.D., now of Berkeley, Calif., and his daughter, Mrs. Charles M. Noble, of Bloomington, Ill., and has been published since 1898, and the edition was long since exhausted, and there has been constant demand for more. About the same date Judge A. P. McCormick published a family book dealing with the McCormick, McKenzie, and Stevenson families, which was a good supplement to the Stevenson book. Judge McCormick was a Federal Circuit Judge living at Dallas, Tex., and a descendant of William Stevenson the First, as I designate him. Rev. John Abner Harris, a great-great-grandson of William the First, a Presbyterian preacher and a bachelor, conceived the plan of bringing the book up to date and collecting the scattered branches whom our uncle couldn't find and designating as far as possible the habitat of the various descendants. He worked diligently at it, found two lost tribes, the descendants of Robert M. Stevenson and Jane Stevenson Sloan, who went to Bellevue, Mo., in 1807, and many other lost limbs of tribes, as of Mira Stevenson Neill, daughter of Joseph Stevenson, etc. He incidentally collected a vast mass of information and genealogy of the Harris and McLelland families, which is used, to the extent that they interlocked with the Stevenson family. I hold this vast store of information in manuscript form for the representatives of said families, who might desire to use it. Before getting it arranged for publication, my cousin (his mother was my father's sister) died rather suddenly at Green Mountain, N. C., and was brought to the old home church at Loray, N. C., and buried among his kin of four generations. In his will he left me these genealogies and family books to be put in shape and published if I saw fit. I am doing that and append here a sketch of him published after his death, in church papers.

REV. JOHN ABNER HARRIS

Rev. John Abner Harris was born October 6, 1861, son of William S. and Mary Stevenson Harris. He was always frail in appearance, but his indomitable will overcame his bodily frailty. Being a child of parents descended from a long line of strict Presbyterians ancestors, he was reared in a home where God was revered and worshiped devoutly, and where His Word was constantly studied.

The demoralization and poverty incident to the Civil War and fifteen years thereafter made it hard to acquire even a good English education, hence he was not able to prepare for and enter college until September, 1884, being then twenty-three years of age. He had been an industrious worker on the farm, and when in school was tireless in his studies and displayed a thoroughness then which characterized his whole life. He graduated at Davidson College in June, 1888, and went to Union Theological Seminary that fall; graduated there in 1891 and entered a pastorate in Rowan County, North Carolina, at Thyatira, one of the oldest churches in North Carolina.

After some years there, he gave up this pastorate and went to the mountain field of Concord Presbytery, Mitchell and Yancey Counties, then destitute of all intelligent religious teaching. He was inspired to this course partly by the example of Dr. Guerrant, then winning the mountain people of Kentucky and laying deep religious foundations there, and partly by his own longing for missionary work. He had volunteered for foreign mission work upon graduation, but was rejected for physical reasons, his frail appearance being mistaken for bodily weakness. He went into the depths of the wilderness of that day in the home field, found a responsive people, organized schools and Sunday Schools and procured teachers, preached several times a week frequently and, as material developed, organized churches until, when called to his reward, there were in the two counties twelve regularly organized and active churches and as many more preaching points, many schools and Sunday Schools, a people who revered and loved him devotedly and Presbyterianism and true religion firmly planted in that wonderful mountain region, extending from near Johnson City on the west to Asheville on the east.

He was devoted to the work and never left it except at the call of duty. Just three years before his death the writer of this sketch wrote him urging that he take a rest of a month and come to Washington, where there was so much that interested him so greatly. In his reply declining the invitation he said: "If I had a flying machine I might take some outings. Maybe I will anyhow if I can get some one to fill my appointments. I am even more in love with my work and my people, and 'there is so much to do and so little done,' I must hurry up."

He never took any outing and preached on Sunday, November 2nd, and died the next Saturday, November 8, 1924, literally dying in harness. His determination was aptly shown when he was rejected by the Foreign Mission Committee, remarking that he would accumulate his money and send it to the foreign field to represent him after he was gone.

Always a splendid business man, he began systematically to save and invest part of his salary each year. On December 29, 1921, he executed his will in accordance with that purpose and left his entire accumulations to the Foreign Mission Committee, "to be used in the support, development and extension of the mission work of said Church in Africa." The bequest will net over twenty thousand dollars, which, in his own words, "will represent him on the field which was denied him in person." The saving of this sum from the salary of a home missionary represents self-denial of the strongest type and illustrates the consecration of this man to his Master's cause.

He was descended, through both father and mother, from the William Stevenson, elder at Fourth Creek, spoken of in Foote's "Sketches of the Presbyterian Church in North Carolina" as being called "Little Gabriel," because in prayer the people said he approached closer to the Throne than any other man in that region. Truly that characteristic descended on him. He was a logical, entertaining and, on occasions, a powerful preacher, but his gift in prayer was the characteristic most often mentioned by people who knew and heard him.

His modest tomb is erected in the cemetery at his home church, Concord (Iredell County), founded by his ancestors, and surrounded by the graves of his kin, but his monuments are the great body of Christians in those mountain lands where he planted and watered and prayed so faithfully, and in the splendid development which will be made with his bequest in the African field where, "being dead, he yet speaketh."

W. F. STEVENSON.

There will be found errors and omissions due to human frailty and to indifference of people about answering inquiries as to their families. Some of these I have corrected, many of them will go uncorrected because were I to undertake to run down the whole family of every tribe, Father Time would overtake me in the same stage of incompleteness that he did my uncle and my cousin. I have changed the order only slightly from the original arrangement. I treat William the First as the Patriarch, and then the descendants of each child as a tribe and devote a separate chapter with a short statement to each tribe. I trust that each member of the family who procures one of these books will be impressed with the necessity of keeping the work up to date so that by 1960 each tribe may issue its own book. That will be two hundred years from the start of the Patriarch's family.

A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF THE
AUTHOR OF THIS GENEALOGICAL HISTORY
AND A TRIBUTE TO HIS MEMORY

The Rev. Samuel Harris Stevenson was born in Iredell County, N. C., on October 19, 1813. His parents were not in affluent circumstances, and it was his lot to render them service in his youth, which he did with filial devotion. His early advantages for education were meager, as there were none but subscription schools, and they were held only two months in the year.

He united with the Concord Presbyterian Church when he was fourteen years of age, but the vivid impressions of spiritual truth, he received in his twentieth year, at a protracted meeting in the Fourth Creek Church, in Statesville, led him to think that he had not been converted till that time. At the age of eighteen he attended Ebenezer Academy, under the tuition of Hugh R. Hall, in Iredell County, spending three years there in study. By the advice of his teachers, he went to Danville, Ky., to prosecute his studies in Centre College, which was then a manual labor institution, going in company with his uncle, Robert S. Hall, who was moving to Illinois, and was to pass through Danville on his way. He reached Danville in the first week of April, 1834, and found that the manual labor feature of the college had been abandoned. He went to work to support himself and to gain funds to defray his college expenses, and entered the freshman class of the college in May, 1835, boarding himself, and yet keeping up with his class. Upon the advice of Rev. John C. Young, D.D., president of the college, he borrowed a horse and spent the vacation in the work of collecting and book agency, collecting for several newspaper publishers, but soon abandoning the book agency. Friends became interested in him, and contributed towards his support. The family of Mr. Robert Montgomery gave him his lodging, board, and washing, during the remainder of his college course. From the time of his graduation in 1838 till 1840, he engaged in collecting; and, having laid up enough money to warrant the step, he set out for Princeton, N. J., to begin his theological studies in the Theological Seminary at that place. Having been taken sick on the way, he did not reach Princeton until near Christmas, three months after the beginning of the Seminary year. The professors of the institution, therefore, advised him to wait and enter at the beginning of the new year. This advice he accepted, and, returning to Kentucky, took up again the business of collecting. When September came in 1841, he was back again at Princeton, beginning his theological studies, but another interruption occurred. About Christmas he was compelled to return to Kentucky to attend to the business interests of others, and was detained there throughout the year. In September of 1842 he was ready to return to Princeton, but the funds he had laid up were swept away in the financial failure of the person to whom he had lent them. He took these repeated adversities as indications of the Lord's will that he should not enter the ministry, and decided to devote his life to teaching. Finding that a female school at Richmond, Ky., was then available, he took charge of it, and began there the work to which he now thought he was called. There he met Miss Minerva Franklin, who had been a teacher for several years. This young lady, by the beauty of her person, her high mental endowment, and pure Christian character, won his affection, and became his wife. The new partners in life and work, found, after three years of experiment, that the school was not profitable, and gave it up. They then removed to Danville, Ky., and opened a private school for girls, which, after two years, was merged into the Danville Female Seminary. This school they carried on till the spring of 1854, when they sold the property to the Danville Theological Seminary, which had been established by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at its meeting in Philadelphia, Pa., in the spring of 1853.

Mr. Stevenson, now finding his way opening in that direction, turned his face again towards the ministry, and entered Danville Theological Seminary, spending two years in the study of theology. In the spring of 1855, he was licensed as a probationer for the Gospel ministry, by Transylvania Presbytery, at a meeting held in Danville.

My first meeting with Mr. Stevenson was in September, 1855, at the house of William Dodds, with whom I was then staying. It was a country house, at Low Point, Woodford County, Illinois, on the old State road, which, until the railroads were constructed, was the thoroughfare between Peoria and Chicago. He arrived in a carriage in company of Rev. Fielding N. Ewing, son of Adlai Ewing, the pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Bloomington, Ill., and with others. Mr. Dodds was an elder of the church of Low Point, to whose hospitable home and bountiful board, way-faring ministers were always welcome. The occupants of the carriage were all on their way to a meeting of Presbytery to be held in the Crowmeadow Church, a country church, which was on the State road ten miles further to the north. At that meeting I received ordination, and the churches of Clinton and Randolph Grove were granted leave to employ the services of Mr. Stevenson as stated supply. At the next stated meeting, April 21, 1856, Mr. Stevenson was taken under the care of Presbytery as a licentiate; and, at the following meeting, held at Clinton, September 18, 1856, he was ordained and installed as pastor of the church of Clinton, and a committee was appointed to install him at Randolph's Grove. On September 16, 1857, the church of Randolph's Grove presented to Presbytery a request for the whole time of Mr. Stevenson, promising ample support. This request was granted at the next stated meeting of Presbytery, April, 1858, and he continued in the pastoral charge of that church until 1863, when he accepted a call to the pastorate of the Union Grove Church, in Putnam County. While at Union Grove he was chosen superintendent of the public schools of Putnam County. From 1868 to 1870, he was principal of the schools at Heyworth, formerly Randolph's Grove, the name of the place having been changed. His wife's health having failed, he removed to Gilman, Ill., in 1870, and, while there, supplied the church of Watseka, the county seat of Iroquois County. His wife was called to her heavenly rest in 1871, and, thereafter, he labored as the stated supply of various churches—Rantoul and Pellsville, Jersey, Gardner, Verona, Atlanta and Wapella, Perry and Fairmount—being twice called to the service of the church of Perry, from 1880 to 1882, and again in 1892. From that time he was compelled, by failing health, to cease regular ministerial labor, and retire to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Dr. Charles M. Noble, at whose house, in the city of Bloomington, Ill., he died, on Sabbath, February 19, 1899, in the 86th year of his age.

Throughout his long life, filled, as it was, with vicissitudes, his trust in the guidance of Providence gave him a placid spirit, undisturbed by anxiety or fear. He was permitted at last to see the hand of his God opening the door to the ministry as plainly as he had seen it before shut the door. After his licensure in Kentucky, he took a trip to Wisconsin, seeking a field of labor. Not finding one he returned and was taking his way to the house of a cousin, Rev. Robert M. Hall, a pastor in the western part of central Illinois, but missing a railway connection at Bloomington, he called on Rev. Fielding N. Ewing, who was an old friend. Mr. Ewing had been requested to look for some suitable person to take charge of the churches of Clinton and Randolph's Grove, and thinking that the right person had now come, he induced Mr. Stevenson to stay over and go with him to visit those churches. The result was an immediate engagement, and the winning of the admiration and affection of all the people of the community, which lasted to the end of his life. It was among them at Heyworth his body found its last earthly resting place.

The most prominent traits of Mr. Stevenson's character were humility, simplicity and sincerity. His piety was deep and genuine; without ostentation; never forced, but always perfectly natural in its manifestations. It awakened no repulsion, and gave him free access to all hearts. In his frequent visits to my congregation, persons opened their hearts freely to him who would not do so to me. One, I remember, who was the son of godly parents, who had been a reckless wanderer all his life, and never married; who was then near eighty years of age, was led by Mr. Stevenson's influence into the fold of the Good Shepherd, and became a most child-like disciple of the Lord. Seldom have I met any one who seemed to me more like a true Nathaniel, "an Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile." One day, in my study, on the last visit he ever made to my house, we were speaking of our habits of private devotion, and he repeated to me some verses which, he said, he had repeated to himself every morning for years, after awakening out of sleep. They were so appropriate to such a use that I asked him to let me take them down, and I will give them here as they came from his lips:

"Holy Father, God of love,
Reigning in the realms above.
For His sake, who died for me,
Hear my humble prayer to thee.
Praise be thine for thou hast kept
Me in safety while I slept.
And, from slumbers of the night,
Hast waked me to this morning light.
Lord be with me through the day,
Lest my footsteps go astray.
Make me pure without, within,
Free from thoughts and deeds of sin;
So shall I, with thee for guide,
Walk, with wisdom by my side,
And pursue the lowly way,
Which shall lead to endless day.
Then, my Father, hear my prayer;
Take my soul into Thy care,
And, through Him that died for me,
Help me live alone to thee."

Mr. Stevenson was a man, not only to be loved for his pure and gentle graces, but to be admired for the strength of his mental endowments. He had an insatiable thirst for knowledge; was a keen observer, and was ever alert in his search for truth, whether in the domain of natural science, philosophy, or theology. In our frequent companionship in each other's homes and in our long drives to the meetings of Presbytery and Synod, I often found him taxing my powers to follow him in his fine discriminations and profound inquiries. One of the most striking beauties of his character appeared in his seeking truth, not for the distinction and position which its discovery and possession might secure, but for its own sake. This general knowledge and scholarly acquirements fitted him for high positions in educational work, yet he was content to minister to his fellowmen, as a servant of Christ, in lowly positions, never allowing his peace to be disturbed by the aspirations of ambition. He was happy in his marriage, and was most tender in the care of his wife during the long and distressing illness, which preceded her death. He was also happy in his children—two sons and a daughter—whose character and position afforded him continual satisfaction. In beautiful devotion they made every provision possible for the comfort of his old age and shed the brightest glow of filial love on the setting day of his life.

The tribute of a friend, who counts it as one of the great privileges of his life, to have enjoyed, for over forty years, the uninterrupted and most intimate friendship of one so genuine, so pure, and so humble in his goodness.

I. A. CORNELISON.

FAMILY HISTORY

William Stevenson, my great-grandfather, was of Scotch-Irish descent, born and raised in the north of Ireland, perhaps in Antrim County. He came to America in 1748, and stopped in what is now Washington County, Pennsylvania, at the home of his mother, who, after the death of his father, had married again, and with her second husband, Mr. White, and the rest of her Stevenson children, had emigrated to America several years before her son William could come. He had been bound to a tailor in Ireland for seven years to learn the tailor's trade, and his master would not give him up to come with the rest of the family when they came to America.

Providentially the celebrated George Whitefield was preaching in the neighborhood where his mother and family were residing, when young Stevenson reached their home near the close of the week, and they were attending his preaching. On the first Sabbath morning after he arrived, when all the rest of the family were preparing to attend church to hear Mr. Whitefield, it was noticed that young William Stevenson was making no preparation to attend, and evidently was not intending to go. His step-father, Mr. White, said to him: "Are you not going with us to church today?" To which he replied: "No, not to hear that enthusiast." To this Mr. White replied: "You had better go to hear him before you condemn him." These wise words of his step-father had the desired effect, for he went with the rest of the family to church; heard Mr. Whitefield; came under conviction that very day; was converted and soon after connected himself with the Presbyterian Church.

Not long after that he married Miss Mary McLelland, of a Scotch-Irish family, who, perhaps, had come from Ireland to America at, or about the same time his mother and her family came, and settled in the same neighborhood. In the spring of 1761, probably, and perhaps earlier, he visited the country between Catawba and South Yadkin rivers, in North Carolina, as proved by the grant of land he received from Lord Granville, which bears date, April 4, 1761. In the fall of 1763, he removed with his family from Pennsylvania to North Carolina, and settled on this grant of land in what is now Iredell County, N. C. Two of his brothers, and perhaps several of his wife's kinfolks, went with them and settled near them. Here he lived, raised his family and died, and was buried in Fourth Cr ek Presbyterian Church burying ground.

A very large part of the people of western Pennsylvania, where he first settled, and again in western North Carolina, where he made his second settlement, were Scotch-Irish Presbyterians or their descendants. Organized churches of other denominations were small, few in number, and widely separated. The instruction of the people, both secular and religious, was very largely under the control of these Scotch-Irish Presbyterians.

There were no common schools organized and sustained by the State at that time in the Southern States. A number of families would club together; build a school house at a point as convenient as possible to all; hire a teacher to teach the elementary English branches—spelling, reading, writing, arithmetic and geography. To make up the teacher's salary, each family would pay in proportion to the number of scholars they subscribed. Hence these schools were called "subscription schools." The books used to teach the children to read were the Primer, Spelling Book, New Testament as a First Reader, and the Old Testament for the more advanced scholars. The children of Christian parents were required, as soon as they could read, to commit to memory one or two of the answers of the Shorter Catechism each day, and recite them to the school master in the morning, until they could repeat them all with a good measure of ease and accuracy. To impress these answers on the minds of their children, and give them a better understanding of the truths they contain, parents would gather them with the other members of the family about them, all joining in reciting these questions and hearing explanations of the language used, each Sabbath evening. Christian parents began the religious instruction of their children at a very early age—many teaching them to read at home before they were old enough to attend school.

Brown's Catechism was much used to begin the instruction of very young children, even before they could read. It contained such questions as these: "Who was the first man? Ans.—Adam. Who was the first woman? Ans.—Eve. Who was the strongest man? Ans.—Sampson.. Who was the oldest man? Ans.—Methuselah. Who was the wisest man? Ans.—Solomon."

In teaching their children these questions parents would turn to the Bible and read the stories of these individuals, out of which these answers were formed. When parents would interest their children by telling them stories, these were usually drawn from Bible history.

Again: when our parents would impress upon our minds the great wrong of such sins as lying, stealing, murder,, etc., they would turn to such passages as Rev. 21:8, "But for the fearful and unbelieving, and abominable, and murderers, and fornicators, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars, their part shall be in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death," thus pointing us to the Word of God to show how God looked upon sin, and how He had declared He would punish those who persisted in their evil ways.

Besides public worship on the Sabbath in the churches, family worship, morning and evening, was very generally observed by these Scotch-Irish Christians. These exercises consisted in reading a chapter or a short portion of scripture, singing a psalm from Rouse's version, or a psalm or hymn from Isaac Watt's Psalms and Hymns; and then the father would lead all in prayer. All the children who could read were expected to take part in the reading of the scriptures, and singing the psalms and hymns.

When the children took part in reading the scriptures, each person, in the order of their ages, read a verse. Oftentimes the scriptures were read in course at family worship, reading the entire Bible through in the course of a year or two.

From the foregoing you will see how early in life these Christian parents began to impress Bible truth upon the minds of their offspring, how constantly they brought it to bear upon their hearts and consciences, and how earnestly they strove to impress it upon their minds that the Bible was the Word of God, that it was the infallible rule by which their lives were to be regulated, and that by its Law all will finally be judged.

James and Prudence (Roddy) Hall, also of Scotch-Irish parentage, emigrated from Carlisle, Pa., in the year 1752, and settled in the western part of North Carolina. They took with them their son James, born August 22, 1744, and settled in what is now Iredell County, a few miles northeast of Statesville, the present county seat of that county. Here James and his brothers and sisters grew up and received such primary instruction as the county schools of that day supplied.

It was customary among these Scotch-Irish Presbyterians to educate and train their eldest son with the view of his becoming a minister. In this family the two oldest sons, James and Robert, were educated, and both became Presbyterian ministers. James received his collegiate education at Princeton, N. J., under the celebrated Rev. John Witherspoon, D.D., LL.D., a Scotchman, and at that time president of the College of New Jersey, and professor of Divinity in that school.

After James Hall had completed his education in Princeton, he returned to his old home in Iredell County, N. C., and was persuaded by his old neighbors and kinfolks to become their minister. Up to that time there had been no regularly organized Presbyterian church with a settled pastor, in that neighborhood. The nearest regularly organized Presbyterian churches were distant from 30 to 50 miles. About the year 1775, Rev. James Hall organized the first Presbyterian church in what is now Iredell County, and the first house of worship was erected in, or near Statesville, the county seat, and this church was named "Fourth Creek." This church still lives; is quite strong, and retains its original name.

William Stevenson, often called "Little Gabriel," from his great fluency and fervency in prayer, was elected and installed one of the first board of Ruling Elders in Fourth Creek Church, and served that church in that capacity as long as he lived. This original Fourth Creek Church, covering at first quite a large territory, was subsequently divided into three churches. Fourth Creek remains at its original location in Statesville. Concord was organized six miles west of Statesville, and a house of worship was built. Bethany was organized, and a house of worship built six miles northeast of Statesville. Dr. Hall continued to serve all three of these churches for a number of years. But when the infirmities of age rendered him unable to serve them properly, he gave up Fourth Creek and Concord, and confined his labors to Bethany, which was only a few miles from his home. He continued to serve this church as long as he was able to preach; but relinquished it several years before he died—his death occurring in the 82nd year of his age.

These two Pennsylvania families, James Hall's and William Stevenson's, living and working together in great harmony under the care of their beloved pastor, Rev. Dr. James Hall, carried forward their plans of church work and family training with marked success, and enjoyed the happy co-operation of their co-workers in the church. Let me notice some of the striking features of their success. Nearly all the young people in the church families, as soon as old enough, united with the church. Nor did they simply confess Christ and have their names enrolled on the church records, but they entered at once, as a general rule, upon the active duties of the Christian life.

In the Hall connection, one son, and in several instances two, entered the Gospel ministry, from nearly every family of Hall descent. In the Stevenson connection, nearly every son was called to serve the church as a Ruling Elder for three or four consecutive generations. Still more: nearly all the daughters of Stevenson descent married elders in the Presbyterian Church, or their husbands were called to fill that office soon after their marriage.

William Stevenson, a son of Little Gabriel, my grand-father, had five sons; one died in childhood; three served in the office of Ruling Elder many years, and the fourth was elected to fill the office of Deacon in his church, but doubting the scriptural authority for that office in the Presbyterian Church, refused to serve.

My father was a Ruling Elder, and four of his sons have filled that office. When he died, two of his sons in the same church, were candidates to fill his place, resulting in a tie vote. The younger, who had not voted in the first balloting, stepped forward and cast his vote for his older brother, saying: "He is better fitted to fill that office than I am."

One of my two sons, Frank, has served the church as a Ruling Elder for more than twenty years, and the other son, Robert, has been a Presbyterian minister for twenty years in May, 1898.

Another fact: While nearly all the families of Hall descent had one son enter the ministry, and sometimes two, none of the Stevenson descendants entered that sacred office until I, a grandson of William and Prudence (Hall) Stevenson, was permitted to enter. Since then my son Robert, and his cousin, John Harris, both great-grand-sons of William and Prudence (Hall) Stevenson, has entered the ministry of the Presbyterian Church. Quite recently James Ervin Summers, of Stevenson descent, without any Hall blood in his veins, after serving the church as a Ruling Elder for a number of years, has been elevated to the office of preaching Elder.

While most of these preachers of Hall descent have entered the ministry of the Presbyterian Church, a few have entered the ministry of other Christian denominations.

When the descendants of James and Prudence (Roddy) Hall were summoned together at Bethany Church in 1875, to celebrate the centennial of the organization of Fourth Creek Church, we found there had been twenty-two ministers of Hall descent who had served the Presbyterian Church. Twenty-eight of Hall descent were wives of Presbyterian ministers.

In the year 1832, William Washington McKenzie, of Christian County, Ky., a grandson of Little Gabriel, was elected and installed a Ruling Elder in Little River Church and now known as "McKenzie" Church, and continued to serve that church in that capacity until the day of his death, March 19, 1894, over sixty years.

Dr. James Hall was frequently liable to religious melancholy, especially in his early ministry. This, combined with a very deep conviction of the heinousness of sin, and of his own unworthiness, often filled his mind with such deep spiritual darkness and distress that he would refuse to preach, deeming himself unworthy to stand in the sacred desk, and preach the precious Gospel of Christ to others, while he was without saving grace in his own heart. While these clouds of spiritual darkness were overwhelming his mind, his own sinfulness was ever present with him; and he was always complaining that "God had hidden His face from him" that he could not get a view of Christ as the "Lord of his righteousness;" and he refused to lead the devotions of his people. He usually attended the house of God, and joined in worship carried on by the Elders, and would occasionally lead in prayer, or give a short exhortation from the clerk's desk, in front and below the pulpit, esteeming himself too great a wretch to preach from the sacred desk, or even to enter it.

It was the custom of these Scotch-Irish churches in that day to maintain the regular routine of worship on the Sabbath. When there was no minister present to preach, one of the elders would lead the services; and these services were the same and in the same order, only when it came to the sermon the elder leading would read a printed sermon in place of the pastor preaching one. At one time Dr. Hall had a period of spiritual darkness which lasted him for about one year and a half, when he utterly refused to preach. Whenever Dr. Hall was present, whoever was to lead the services would always go to him and say: "Won't you preach for us today?" He would invariably refuse. Little Gabriel became very deeply concerned about the sad condition of his pastor, and spent much time in secret prayer for him.

One Sabbath when they were to convene at Bethany Church for public worship, and Elder Stevenson was to lead the services, he stopped by the way for a season of prayer for his pastor, and in his agonizing with God in his behalf, stayed longer than he had intended. A large congregation assembled and waited for some time for Elder Stevenson to come, but when he failed to appear they began to leave for their homes. Some one going in the direction from which Elder Stevenson would approach the church, saw him coming and ran back and cried out: "Little Gabriel is coming, Little Gabriel is coming." Most, if not all, the congregation reassembled, and Dr. Hall among the rest. As soon as they were ready to commence the services, Elder Stevenson, as was his custom, said: "Dr. Hall, won't you preach for us today?" He replied, "Oh—no—no—no. It is impossible." When he saw that Dr. Hall was still in deep spiritual darkness and distress, he was much moved. Entering the seat appropriated to the elders before the pulpit, after a psalm was sung, he commenced a strain of humble petition and adoration that touched all hearts. His first petition was: "O Lord, cast the deaf and dumb devil out of our pastor; this deaf devil, that will not allow him to hear the promises of the Gospel; and the dumb devil that will not suffer him to preach to us as he has heretofore done." At the close of this prayer the venerable pastor arose and made his way to the long unvisited pulpit. To Elder Stevenson he said as he passed: "I will try to preach today." The sermon gave evidence that the prayer of Little Gabriel had been answered. It is commonly reported by the people of these three congregations, to whom Dr. Hall preached, that he was not troubled by these melancholy spells for many years after Little Gabriel's prayer and never so seriously as before.

From a personal knowledge of one-half of the descendants of Little Gabriel, and from reliable information in regard to the other half, I believe that from eighty to ninety per cent of his descendants, who lived to be old enough, in the second and third generations, made a public profession of their faith in Christ, and have aided in supporting and carrying forward the work of the church.

From the best information I can secure in gathering the names of his posterity by collecting the family records of his descendants, they have multiplied already, in less than one hundred and fifty years, since he came to America, to about three thousand souls. This includes those introduced into the clan by marriage.

William Stevenson came from Ulster, Ireland, where the Scotch-Irish had felt the hand of the oppressor, to America, where, led by this Christian people, a free and independent Christian government was soon after established. He and his posterity have secured good homes and all the lands they could cultivate. While none of his descendants have gained even great wealth, so far as I can learn all have had enough to live in a high degree of comfort. I never knew of one of them being sent to the poor house. So far as I have learned about them most of them have been successful farmers and mechanics. Quite a number in the fourth and fifth generations are making their mark as lawyers. One of them presides over one of the circuits of the U. S. Courts. The voices of others have been heard in the Halls of Congress. Two at least have represented the United States in the courts in foreign lands, and one has presided over the Senate of the United States as Vice-President. So you will see that a few at least of the Stevenson descendants have held positions in liberal professions, and have had a share in the affairs of State.

We have been told by some who bowed at the family altar with Little Gabriel, that he never failed, neither morning nor evening, to offer one petition, as follows: "Lord, grant that my posterity, down to the end of time, may be savingly converted and brought into the kingdom of Christ, and that they all at last may meet in heaven."

I have taken much pains to find out the religious history and character of my great-grand parent, William Stevenson, and his descendants, because I believe that every sincere Christian parent, who carefully instructs and trains his children in the truths and principles of the Bible from their infancy up, and prays to God continually for His blessings upon these efforts, may rest assured that God will hear and answer his prayers, will convert his children and descendants, and will gather them all home into His Kingdom of Glory at last as certainly as He fulfilled His promises to Abraham.

William Stevenson, my great-grandfather, was born and raised in Ulster, Ireland; born about the year 1725; came to America, it is believed, between the years 1745 and 1750. One authority says he came in 1745; married Miss Mary McLelland, also of Scotch-Irish parentage, and settled in what is now Washington County, Penna. where one or more of his children were born.

As early as 1761, he visited that part of North Carolina which lies between the Catawba and South Yadkin rivers, and secured a grant of land from Lord Granville, which grant bears date April 4, 1761; and in the fall of 1763, he removed with his family from Pennsylvania and settled in what is now Iredell County, N. C., on the land purchased from Lord Granville, a few miles southwest of Statesville, the county seat of Iredell County. Here he lived, raised his family, settled the most of them around him, and when he died his body was laid to rest in Fourth Creek Churchyard burying ground.

To this I append as full a list of his descendants as I have been able to secure by collecting the family records of himself and of all his descendants that have married and formed families. These family records I have secured by the kind help of living members of families in the third, fourth and fifth generations of his descendants. Many of these family records have been furnished by the parents, sending in their own family records.

Little Gabriel's son Robert married Rebecca Steel, and went west at an early day; perhaps to Missouri. I have not been able to find any of his living descendants from whom I might secure the family records of that branch of the Stevenson family. The same is true of his sister, Jane Stevenson, who married William Sloan. I think these families moved, perhaps about the same time, and settled in Missouri. Mrs. Eliza Stevenson, now of Bloomington, Ill., and now 89 years of age, says Robert Stevenson had five sons—names not known—and two daughters, Mariah and Cynthia. Also she says that Jane Sloan had six sons and one daughter. One son was named Alexander and another Stevenson. But the names of the daughter, and the other four sons, she could not give. This is all I have been able to learn about these two branches of this Stevenson family.

Names of married women inclosed in parentheses, as (Johnson) indicates the maiden name of that woman.

I write that name of the parents first in the family record which forms the link connecting that family to the Stevenson clan.

CHAPTER I

WILLIAM STEVENSON, PATRIARCH. The family history set out above deals as fully with William Stevenson and wife called here, William the First, as I can do, and I add nothing on this chapter, except his will which I here set out to show what manner of man he was. It is in his own handwriting and he after giving an equal amount in value to his entire surviving children, has the valuable tract of 535 acres to leave to Moses, his youngest son.

In the name of God. Amen. I, William Stevenson, Senior, of the State of North Carolina and County of Iredell, being at present in my ordinary state of health, of mind and of memory—thanks be to God for it—calling to mind the mortality of my body, that it is appointed for all men once to die, for that all have sinned—do make this and ordain it and no other heretofore by me made—to be my last will and testament. And first of all, I commit my soul to God, who gave it to me, and my body to the dust, to be buried in a decent manner, at the discretion of my Executors hereinafter mentioned, nothing doubting but I shall receive the same again at the Last Day by the power of Almighty God; and for such earthly things as it hath pleased God to endow me with, I dispose of them in the following manner: And, first of all, I allow my lawful debts fully to be discharged. 2. I leave to my loving wife, Mary, one negro wench named Betty, to be at her own disposal during life, and at her death also, if alive until then; also the negro wench named Dina, to be at her disposal during the life of my wife; and after that, if the said Dina be alive, to go as I shall direct. I also leave to her her own choose of all the beds we own, with full furniture thereunto belonging; also her own clothes, coarse and fine, also her own choose of all the horse creatures we then shall be possessed of; her own saddle and bridle; also a choose of the cattle as far as two cows and two calves; I also leave her in full possession of the house I now live in while she remains my widow; also the use of the barn, kitchen and other necessary houses thereunto belonging with the third part of this plantation I now live on, clear and unclear, with the use of all my stock, horses, cows, sheep and hogs, with all laboring instruments necessary for laboring on the plantation, except the reserves hereafter to be made; also the negro man named Henry, during her widowhood, to be under her direction to labor for the family support; and if my dear wife does not choose to live in her present habitation, but would choose rather to go to live with some other of her children, she may take with her the wenches named, and Henry, and what stock she pleases, to labor for her and themselves. 3. I leave to my son, Moses, the whole of the plantation I now live on, which contains 535 acres, after my wife is served of it, and two parts of it clear and unclear, till then. I also allow to him, after my wife is done with them, all the instruments of laboring tools belonging to the plantation, the present wagon excepted; the remaining at that time of cattle, sheep and hogs I allow for his use; also all household furniture of all kinds, except beds and books, I bequeath to him. I also allow him my big house Bible and Hymn and Psalm Book with my lot in Union Library. 4. I leave and bequeath to my daughter, Elizabeth McKenzie, the forementioned wench, Dina, when my wife is done with her, to whom she is now left, her, with all her breed, till then, if any there be, be the said McKenzie's; and till that time comes she is now possessed of a negro boy named Jack that is to fill her room until delivered to her, and if death should prevent, Jack is to continue in her stead as their own property; but if Dina is delivered, aforesaid Jack returned and disposed of as hereafter directed. 5. I leave and bequeath to William Stevenson, son of John Stevenson, one hundred acres of land laying on the waters of Third and Fourth Creek near Statesville, being part of a tract given by me to my son, Robert Stevenson, and by him exchanged to his brother James, the said 100 acres being on the east end of said tract, beginning at a black oak sapling, George Robinson's northeast corner of a piece of the same tract he bought of said James Stevenson; from thence east to a post oak sapling, being the original east corner of said tract; but now cut down, unknowingly by the cutter, is now supplied by a large standing stone set up by and before many witnesses for that purpose; from thence south to a Spanish oak joining William Simentown, Esqr.; thence west with said Simentown's till a post oak sapling on said line George Robinson's southeast corner; thence north with said Robinson's line to the beginning. And if the said William should not live to possess it, it is to pass to the next male in the family till possessed. 6. I leave to Mary Stevenson, John Stevenson's oldest daughter, one mare known by the name of the sorrel mare's colt. 7. I leave to my son, John Stevenson, the wagon I am now the possessor of, but no gears. 8. I also leave to my son, William Stevenson, all my clothes that I am possessed of, both coarse and fine. 9. I do leave and bequeath unto William Stevenson Sloan one hundred dollars, to be paid to him out of my estate, together with my full margin Bible to be given to him also. 10. My books not already mentioned I allow to be divided amongst my children at the discretion of my Executors. 11. The remaining of my estate not yet bequeathed I allow to be put to public sale, to-wit: The two negroes Henry and Jack, if Dina lives to release Jack; if not, Henry is only to be sold; also what horses may remain, together with whatever bedding may then remain as the property of the Estate, all to be sold, and the whole Estate, or the amount of it after all demands are cleared off, to be equally divided amongst all my children, male and female. Last of all, I appoint my sons, John, William and Robert Stevenson to be the Executors of this, my last will and testament, and in witness of my satisfaction with what is herein contained, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this Eighth day of March, 1803. Signed with my hand and sealed with my seal in presence of us. WILLIAM STEVENSON, SR.

Mr. Stevenson died in the spring of 1809. His son Robert had moved to the great West in 1807, and settled at Bellvue, in Missouri, in 1808. The sons John and William qualified as Executors and filed the Inventory of the Estate May 15, 1809.

CHAPTER II. TRIBE OF JOHN

(For Genealogy see page 37)

JOHN STEVENSON, the oldest son who was married, remained in Iredell County and lived in the western boundary of Statesville, N. C., on what is now known as the Fergus place, where Fergus, his son, lived, and where John W. Stevenson lived, and where his widow died a short time ago. His family was numerous as the record shows and in the third generation scattered and intermarried with other tribes of the race. The most prominent of them in my day was Rev. James Morrison Barkley, D.D., of Detroit, Mich., who left Iredell County after the Civil War in which he served as a Confederate soldier, took an education in Illinois and Princeton, became a leader in the Northern Church and was Moderator of that General Assembly, and I met him in that capacity at Montreat, N. C., some years ago. It was an achievement for a Confederate soldier to reach that position in the Northern Church. This tribe furnishes two great grandsons of William the First, still alive, January, 1926, to-wit: Joseph Thomas Stevenson (son of Fergus) at Eufola, Iredell County, N. C., and David Francis Stevenson (son of David Stevenson) of Atlanta, Ga. Statesville, N. C., has been the habitat of this tribe.

CHAPTER III. TRIBE OF WILLIAM

(For Genealogy see page 61)

WILLIAM STEVENSON, second, married and lived adjoining his father's place three miles west of Statesville, north of the road to Taylorsville and not far from the Thomas Waugh place, at the point where the road by Watt's Mill, to, I think, the Island Ford on the Catawba, leaves the Taylorsville road. His sons were all prominent in the affairs of the county and his grandsons who remained there were also outstanding figures. Many of his descendants have migrated to the West. I think only one grandson survives, Junius G. Stevenson, son of John Franklin Stevenson, who lives not over a mile from where William the second lived. Of his descendants the late E. M. Stevenson was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1865 in North Carolina, was frequently a member of the house of representatives and senate of North Carolina and clerk of court of Alexander County and long the leading citizen of that county. His brother, J. Hervey Stevenson, was a man of remarkable intellectual power and was active in public affairs and represented Iredell County in the legislature. Their brother, Rev. S. H. Stevenson is dealt with above, and his son, Rev. R. M. Stevenson, D.D., is a very prominent and talented Presbyterian minister in Berkely, California. He was for years president of Westminster College, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Dr. Samuel W. Stevenson, a great grandson of William the second lived at Mooresville, N. C., Iredell County, N. C., and was one of the leading men of Iredell for a generation. Represented her twice in the legislature, and of him the Charlotte Observer (the leading daily in that section) said editorially, "Our neighboring county, Iredell, lost one of its staunchest and finest citizens the other day in the death of Dr. S. W. Stevenson. He was representative of the finest elements in North Carolina manhood, and in the days of activity he was a tower of abiding strength to his community." Rev. John A. Harris another great grandson has been spoken of above. The writer feels diffident as to setting down his own position in the world and suffice it to say that he, a great grandson is now serving his fifth term in Congress from the fifth South Carolina district, having been a lawyer for thirty-eight years, often a member of the house of representatives of South Carolina, and for a while the speaker of that body. Loray, Iredell County, is the center of this tribe, but they have scattered thence to the four corners of the earth. One grandson of William, second, who also should be mentioned was William Sidney Stevenson, father of the writer, who exerted greater spiritual influence in Concord Church than any other member of his day, and was affectionately known as "Uncle Sidney" all over that region.

CHAPTER IV. TRIBE OF JAMES

(For Genealogy see page 122)

* JAMES STEVENSON, head of this tribe married NANCY BREVARD, daughter of Col. Hugh Brevard, brother of Dr. Ephraim Brevard, who drew the Mecklenburg Declaration. Colonel Brevard was one of the Commanders at the Battle of Ramseurs Mill. James Stevenson after his marriage lived in Lincoln County for quite awhile. His nine children were born there. In 1814 in company with his brother-in-law Andrew McKenzie and brother Moses Stevenson and a large party of emigrants he crossed the mountains and settled in Christian County, Kentucky, where he and the party established their homes and a Presbyterian Church and reared their families, and saw them, many of them, move on to Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas and Texas, and become leading citizens wherever they went. His most prominent descendant up to this time was Hon. Adlai Ewing Stevenson, member of Congress from the Bloomington district, Illinois, First Assistant Postmaster General under Cleveland 1885-1889, Vice-President of United States 1893-1897, an exalted and honored citizen of the great State of Illinois till his death. James Stevenson Ewing another grandson was a great lawyer and Minister to Belgium 1893-1897. His descendants have been prominent wherever they lived. Christian County, Ky., and Bloomington, Ill., have been their radiating centers.

CHAPTER V. TRIBE OF JOSEPH

JOSEPH STEVENSON, married JENNIE BREVARD, sister of James Stevenson's wife, and after her death he married MARTHA CLENDENNING. He lived awhile in Iredell and then Lincoln County and finally went to Rutherford County, N. C., then being newly settled and at one time the record shows that he owned about 3,500 acres of land in that county. Disaster overtook him somehow and he lost a large part of his fortune and finally died in Alexander County on a place some eight or ten miles from Taylorsville. In the first edition of this book his daughters Myra and Jincy Stevenson are not classed as having married. We have found that Jincy married Jacob Sherrill and went with her Uncle James Stevenson's colony to Christian County, Ky., and her descendants there and in Texas are both numerous and prominent. Myra married John Neill and the writer as a young school teacher near Shepherd's Cross Road, N. C., was entertained at her elegant home and told what kin we were and I have listed many of her descendants in this book, but many are not here. Young people do not take enough interest in their affairs to supply the information. I also knew his youngest son, Joseph Minor Stevenson, near Taylorsville, N. C., where hospitality was dispensed in the days of my boyhood in the way to make a schoolboy, as I was, feel at home. His three daughters married three first cousins of mine, L. C. Stevenson, Junius L. Stevenson and William H. Stikeleather, to whom they were only related, however, in the sixth degree. I also knew Aunt Exemina Stevenson, Joseph's daughter, who married her cousin, Fergus Stevenson (son of John) and lived in the west of Statesville as already stated. Joseph Minor's three daughters, Martha, Amanda, and Emma are probably the only great grand-daughters of William the first now in existence.

CHAPTER VI. TRIBE OF ROBERT

ROBERT STEVENSON married REBECCA STEELE and with his brother-in-law William Sloan and sister Jane Sloan went West in 1807. They stopped in Christian County, Ky., in the early fall. A company of the leading men went on across the Mississippi River and explored for a settlement. Having located the beautiful Bellevue Valley, they returned and took their families over and founded a settlement there in 1808 and became a center of civilization. The two families were central figures in organizing the first Protestant Church west of the Mississippi River at Bellevue, organized by Rev. Thomas Donnell, a native of Guilford County, N. C., who married Eliza Sloan, daughter of Jane Stevenson and William Sloan. William Sloan was the first Elder. Robert Stevenson was a member of the constitutional convention that framed the first constitution for Missouri, and he is mentioned in the "Austin papers," dealing with the history of Austin's settlement of Texas, later published by the United States, and his son William was an active aid of Stephen F. Austin in that enterprise. See "Austin papers," pages 369, 415, and 1206. William was then, 1823-1826, living in Hempstead County, Arkansas. Many of this family went to Iowa, also to California and Texas.

CHAPTER VII. TRIBE OF MOSES

(For Genealogy see page 169)

* MOSES STEPHENSON married ANNIE EWING and lived with his father until he died in 1809, see William Stevenson will, and when they got the immigration fever in 1814 he sold out and went with his brother James and his sister Elizabeth McKenzie and the Ewings, his wife's people to Christian County, Kentucky, where he lived and died and where many of his descendants live now. One daughter, Mary Caroline, married her first cousin, Judge William Washington McKenzie. They mostly lived in southwestern Kentucky and west Tennessee. Bennettstown, Ky., seems to have been a central point of the family. Elizabeth Ann Stevenson, who married her cousin, Joseph Stevenson Sherrill, lived at Mayfield, Ky. They do not seem to have been as migratory as most of the Kentucky and Missouri branches of the family, but we have less information about them of late years than of the others.

CHAPTER VIII. TRIBE OF JANE

(For Genealogy see page 178)

JANE STEVENSON married WILLIAM SLOAN and they migrated with Robert M. Stevenson as stated in the foreword to tribe VI to Bellevue, Mo., in 1808 and helped to form that great common wealth. Her home was where preachers were entertained; her husband was the first elder of the first Presbyterian Church west of the Mississippi, and her daughter married Rev. Thomas Donnell, who organized it. Her family migrated westerly to Arkansas and Texas and the most prominent of them politically is a grandson, Clay Sloan, who has been State Auditor, State Senator, Lieutenant Governor, and Superintendent of Agriculture of the State of Arkansas, which office he held as late as 1911. Most of the family moved south to Arkansas and Texas whence some of them went to California.

CHAPTER IX. TRIBE OF NANCY

(For Genealogy see page 191)

NANCY STEVENSON married JOHN WATT and lived in Iredell County, between Concord Church (Loray) and New Stirling. Her children mostly settled near the old home and reared their families. The next generation as the records show scattered largely but principally to Tennessee, where they are leading business people in Johnson City, and to Texas, where one of her grandsons, W. T. Watt, at Waco, became the leading citizen of his county. I knew him intimately and had a great admiration for his simplicity and sincerity and abounding hospitality. He carved his way from a ragged destitute soldier who walked most of the way home from Petersburg, Va., to Stony Point, N. C., to a millionaire's position and was as simple and unassuming as one as he was as the other. His loyalty to the cause for which he fought never waned but no bitterness lingered against his foes. By far the largest number of Nancy Watts descendants remained in Iredell and Alexander counties where they made a splendid citizenship and are found in all walks of business life. None of them have ever been professional men I think.

CHAPTER X. TRIBE OF ELIZABETH

(For Genealogy see page 211)

ELIZABETH STEVENSON, the youngest child, married ANDREW MCKENZIE, and went with him and her brothers to Kentucky, 1814. Soon afterward her husband was drowned and she was left with a helpless family and precarious support. Her brother, James Stevenson, took charge of her affairs and saw to her proper support, managing her farm and property until her son, William Washington McKenzie, was old enough to assume that responsibility. To compensate for her hardships she saw her children all successful in life. Her oldest daughter married Josiah Hughes Bell and went with him to Texas, where he was the acting governor of Austin's Colony, and a very successful man. The Capital of the Republic of Texas was at his home in Columbia, which he founded, for the first year or two and Sam Houston, President, had an office as President in the Bell yard. Mrs. McKenzie late in life went there to live with Mrs. Bell and died there. James Hall Bell, Mrs. Bell's son, became a distinguished lawyer, and was a member of the Supreme Court when Texas seceded, and with Sam Houston, then governor, vacated the office rather than go out with the State. Another daughter of Mrs. McKenzie married Joseph Manson McCormick, of Bellevue, Mo., and went with him in Austin's Colony and settled with the Bells on the Bernard River. Her only son, Andrew Phelps McCormick, became United States Circuit Judge and held the position till his death. Mrs. McKenzie's son, William Washington McKenzie, became a leading citizen of his county and region and his son, James Andrew McKenzie, was one of the most brilliant men of his generation, being Secretary of State, Congressman, Minister to Peru, and a great leader of the Democratic party. His speech nominating Cleveland in 1888 for re-election, in the St. Louis convention was classed as one of the great flights of American Eloquence. One of William W. McKenzie's daughters married Mr. Moss and his son, McKenzie Moss, has been Circuit Judge, member of Congress, and is now (1925) Assitant Secretary of the Treasury and regarded as a very able man. Another of Mrs. McKenzie's daughters married a Girard and her daughter, Amanda Girard, married Graham Barkley, and had a number of sons. One of those, John Barkley, has a son, Alben William Barkley, of Paducah, Ky., who has been a member of Congress from the first Kentucky district fourteen years, an able and leading member; so the descendants of the widow have shed lustre on their names both in Kentucky and Texas and most of them live in those states. *vice Pres. Other branches of the family: My father told me that he was told in the family traditions that when William, the Patriarch of this crowd, settled in North Carolina, a brother, John, settled at Blackstock, S. C., which is on the line now between Chester and Fairfield counties. On investigation I am satisfied that the Rossville clan of Stevensons on both sides of the county line there are descendants from him. They are Presbyterians, the backbone of old Catholic Presbyterian Church, and have been since it was founded about 1770. And all the traditions and characteristics appear to point to this family known as the "Rocky Creek" Stevensons as his descendants. There are numerous others of the clan who came to Chester and Fairfield counties direct from county Antrim, Ireland, and one of whom Daniel Green Stevenson (who wrote his name indifferently Stevenson or Stinson) was also clearly of the clan. One Fairfield family came over in the 19th century but came from the same region, spell their names the same and have the other characteristic. Daniel Green Stevenson was quite a local historian and of his descendants who mostly signed themselves "Stinson" the late Senator Carmack of Tennessee was one and his second cousins Judge J. E. McDonald and Rev. Charles McDonald of Fairfield County, their mother being his descendants. The family is numerous in the three counties of York, Chester, and Lancaster, and mostly came there by way of Pennsylvania, but came from County Antrim, Ireland.

CHAPTER V.

JOSEPH STEVENSON, sixth child of the ancestor, born April 25, 1769, on September 2, 1795, married JENNIE BREVARD, born May 10, 1776, daughter of Col. Hugh Brevard, of whom; see introduction of Chapter IV. *

THEIR CHILDREN: Martha Clendennin's.

Jincy Young Stevenson.

Myra Stevenson.

Hugh Brevard Stevenson, who died childless; Joseph Stevenson's first wife died prior to 1804, and on July 10, 1804, he married his second wife, MARTHA CLENDENNIN, born June 27, 1777.

THEIR CHILDREN:

Lydia Pelina Stevenson; born May 6, 1805.

Camilla Stevenson; born April 4, 1807.

Juliette Stevenson; born July 9, 1809.

Exemina Stevenson; born August 20, 1812.

Thomas Clendennin Stevenson; born July 26, 1815.

Joseph Minor Stevenson; born July 27, 1817.

JINCY YOUNG STEVENSON (called by Judge McCormick erroneously Elizabeth—see page 89 McCormick's book), married JACOB SHERRILL and lived in Christian County, Ky.

THEIR CHILDREN:

Nancy Elenora Sherrill; born May 3, 1833.

Pinkey E. Sherrill; died February 1, 1889.

I think Joseph Stevenson Sherrill, born August 9, 1822; died July 4, 1879, was their son also—see Chapter VII.

Also MARTHA JANE SHERRILL, who married WILLIAM LOWREY STEVENSON. See Chapter VII.

NANCY ELENORA SHERRILL, on April 15, 1852, married WILLIAM EDWARD CREWS, born January 3, 1819; died January 15, 1877, in Christian County, Ky., and moved to Brazoria County, Tex., where, Judge McCormick says (page 90 of his book): "Her children now reside and exert a large local influence."

THEIR CHILDREN:

Edward Manson Crews; born March 4, 1853.

Alice Crews; born February 22, 1855.

(143)

* Nancy Brevard Stev. Sister!
Died 6 mos after marriage!
No Issue

Pinkey Sherrill Crews; born March 27, 1856.
Joseph Alexander Crews; born October 19, 1858.
Robert B. Crews; born February 7, 1860.
Robert Crews; born September 28, 1862.
William Lee Crews; born July 21, 1864.
Geo. Jarvis Crews; born August 27, 1866.
Nancy Elenora Crews; born April 3, 1868.
Johnnie Crews; born February 22, 1870.
Frank Sweeny Crews; born October 12, 1872.

I have no further information about them, but from their number and the vigor of the race the statement of Judge McCormick as to their local influence is doubtless well founded.

* PINKNY E. SHERRILL, in July, 1853, married MARY WASHINGTON MCKENZIE, born July 24, 1834, daughter of William Washington McKenzie (who was a son of Elizabeth Stevenson, twelfth child of William Stevenson First) and Mary Caroline Stevenson, daughter of Moses Stevenson, ninth child of the same William, so that this record will deal with genealogy in both the Moses Stevenson and Elizabeth McKenzie branches of the family, which will appear herein as Chapters VII and XI of this book.

THEIR CHILDREN:

Manson Bell Sherrill lives in the State of Washington.
James Brevard Sherrill lives in Ellis County, Tex.

This is all I can give of the descendants of Jincy Young Stevenson, who is merely named in the former Stevenson book.

MYRA STEVENSON, second daughter of Joseph Stevenson and Jennie Brevard, married JOHN NEILL, on July 30, 1818; she was born December 12, 1796, and died September 8, 1880. They lived two miles west of Shepherd's Crossroad, Iredell County, N. C., and were very prosperous planters. He was born February 3, 1793, and died June 3, 1866.

THEIR CHILDREN:

William Stevenson Neill; born May 20, 1819; died May 16, 1894.
Jane Lemira Neill; born February 5, 1821; died August 24, 1908.
John Washington Neill; born October 17, 1822; died May, 1854, in Mississippi; unmarried; (murdered).
Ann Elizabeth Neill; born April 18, 1824; died May 1, 1853.

Adaline Neill; born November 11, 1825; died January 7, 1863.
Thomas Brevard Neill; born September 12, 1827; died March 4, 1914; unmarried.
Andrew Theodore Neill; born August 6, 1829; killed near Richmond in battle June 1, 1864; unmarried.
Hugh Alphonso Neill; born June 2, 1831; died September 22, 1908.
Rosannah Camilla Neill; born May 26, 1833; died August 4, 1884.
Mary Letitia Neill; born April 11, 1835.
Martha Julia Neill; born May 12, 1842; died July 7, 1844.

WILLIAM STEVENSON NEILL married RUTH LONG, and raised a large family of children, two miles west of Shepherd's Cross-Roads, N. C. Nearly all of them are dead, and I am unable to trace their descendants. (My first experience in life as my own man was in teaching the free school at their school house, near which William, Alphonso and Thomas all lived. Aunt Myra was then living, winter and spring of 1880, and more abundant hospitality no one ever experienced than I received from these relatives). I will give all the names that I can recall.

THEIR CHILDREN:

Maude Neill; married — Setzer, near Troutman's.
John Neill; married Squire Billy Mills' daughter, Fannie Mills, I think, and had several children, in 1880.
Frank Neill; married Miss Campbell, and died in the late eighties, left one son whose name I think was Frank.
Gustave D. Neill; born in 1860; married, but I don't know whom, and died June 2, 1925, leaving 13 children, as follows:
Mrs. Maggie Sleets, Rockingham, N. C.
Mrs. J. C. McLean, Mooresville, N. C.
Mrs. Joe Camp, Charlotte, N. C.
Mrs. J. F. Hannah, Davidson, N. C.
Miss Katherine Neill, Davidson, N. C.
Mrs. Earl Ervin, Davidson, N. C.
Miss Edna Neill, Shepherd, Iredell County, N. C.
Mrs. Virginia Neill, Shepherd, Iredell County, N. C.
Flake Neill, Shepherd, Iredell County, N. C.
G. S. Neill Shepherd, Iredell County, N. C.
Erin Neill, Shepherd, Iredell County, N. C.

Joseph Neill, Shepherd, Iredell County, N. C.
James Walter Neill, Shepherd, Iredell County, N. C.; born July 22, 1899; died April 11, 1925.

I haven't attempted to give them in the order of their ages, as they were not given to me that way.

William S. Neill's children (continued):

Kate Neill, a beautiful girl, died with T. B. when blooming into womanhood.

James Neill, I think, died in Texas, years ago.

Tobe Neill died with T. B. while young. His name here given was his nickname, but I don't remember ever having heard his real name.

Whit Neill was the youngest, and I think his was a nickname. I have heard that he is still alive, in Texas.

Jane Lemira Neill, second child of Myra and John Neill, married John Coleman, of Rowan County, N. C.; reared a family, some of whom are about China Grove, N. C.

ANNIE ELIZABETH NEILL married EDWIN FALLS, and died on May 1, 1853.

THEIR CHILDREN:

William Falls; killed in Confederate army.

Laura Falls; who married William Davidson, and moved to Kaufman County, Tex., in 1875.

ADALINE NEILL married ALEXANDER CLARK, of Iredell County, N. C., who died on August 17, 1869. They were married in 1851.

THEIR CHILDREN:

Catherine Elmira Clark; born March 19, 1856; married W. O. Benton, February 22, 1884, and bore two children, both dying in infancy.

Margaret Anne Clark; born November 4, 1857; died April 2, 1878; married Charles Wagner, on March 2, 1876. No children.

HUGH ALPHONSO NEILL married DELPHIA TEMPLETON, of Rowan County, N. C.

Was superintendent of Illinois Central Hospital for the insane, at Jacksonville, Ill., in 1894. Judge McCormick in his book on the Stevensons, McCormick and McKenzie, quotes James Andrew McKenzie as saying: "John Fielding was the most gifted of his father's children." Page 94 of the McCormick book, at same page, he quotes Adlai E. Stevenson in a letter dated January 20, 1897, when he was Vice-President of the United States, as follows: "As you may have occasion to mention John F. McKenzie, who died April 13, 1896, at Leroy, Ill., I wish to say that he was one of the best men I have ever known. He was indeed the counterpart of his noble father. We were all deeply grieved at his death." This was high praise from one rated himself for nobility of character.

Mary McGill; born November 23, 1894.

BELL McCORMICK, on July 5, 1893, married CHARLES TRUMAN BARRY, born January 12, 1859.

SARAH McCORMICK married a Baptist minister and lived in Oklahoma the last I knew of her. I have mislaid the letter of Judge McCormick in which he gives the information. I met her and Judge McCormick in New Orleans in May, 1898, where with my wife, I was attending the Presbyterian General Assembly, of which Assembly my cousin John A. Harris was also a member. I was defending the Synod of South Carolina against a complaint of some learned professors at the Columbia Seminary. I never saw Judge McCormick again. In 1914, I was in Waco, Tex., and was told he was there but in such mental and physical condition that he didn't know anyone, and didn't go to see him as I preferred to remember him as the jovial, alert man and entertaining conversationalist that I had met in 1898. He died soon afterwards. His son, A. P. McCormick, is a lawyer in Waco, Tex., but Mr. Harris does not seem to have gotten any further information as to the balance of the family, nor have I been more fortunate.

SARAH ELIZABETH McCORMICK (sister of Judge McCormick), on March 20, 1856, married ABNER STILSON LATHROP, born September 30, 1829, died —. They lived at Brazoria, Tex., where he was a lawyer, and where she died April 21, 1859.

David Manson Lathrop; born July 16, 1858; died March 21, 1859.

CATHERINE ATHELIA McKENZIE, on November 15, 1827, married JOHN TURLY GUNNELL, born May 1, 1796; died April 28, 1867, and lived in Christian County, Ky., till 1834, when they moved to McLean County, Ill., near Danvers, Ill., where she died April 9, 1894.

THEIR CHILDREN:

William Henry Gunnell; born September 17, 1828; died April 23, 1859.

John Turly Gunnell; born May 9, 1830.

James Lincoln Gunnell; born February 16, 1832.

Elizabeth Louisa Gunnell; born July 22, 1835.

Joseph McKenzie Gunnell; born October 24, 1836.

Washington McKenzie Gunnell; born October 25, 1838.

Margaret Anne Gunnell; born January 26, 1841.

Romena Bell Gunnell; born February 17, 1881.

John Turly Gunnell; born May 5, 1884.

Johnson Myers Gunnell; born August 19, 1890.

ELIZABETH LOUISA GUNNELL, on February 11, 1864, married ORVILLE UTLEY VAUGHAN, born January 1, 1834, died February 3, 1855, and lived at Slater, Mo.

THEIR CHILDREN:

Belle Gunnell Vaughan; born December 2, 1864.

Ella Vaughan; born September 18, 1867.

Athelia Louisa Vaughan; born August 4, 1874.

ELLA VAUGHAN, on December 27, 1893, married FRANK HUGHES, born August 29, 1861.

WASHINGTON McKENZIE GUNNELL, on June 30, 1891, married MARY PALMER, born November 13, 1858.

THEIR CHILDREN:

Palmer McKenzie Gunnell; born May 6, 1892.

Vaughan Gunnell; born —.

MARGARET ANN GUNNELL, on October 28, 1875, married NICHOLAS MERRIWEATHER EDWARDS, born February 28, 1839, and lives at Slater, Mo.

MARY BELLE GUNNELL, on October 5, 1882, married THOMAS BURTON ROSS, born December 6, 1834, and lives at Slater, Mo.

This is all we know as to this family, except that John and Joseph Gunnell live in McLean County, Ill., and Washington in an adjoining county, while James lives at Gunnison, Col.

JAMES LINCOLN McKENZIE, in January, 1835, married MRS. MARY ANN (JACKSON) RIVERS, who died in 1835. They had one child, born in 1835, and died in 1836.

This completes the genealogical list as far as I am able to make it. Many people who should be in it neglected to give the information necessary, when requested, and the addresses of many were unknown to us, hence there are many omissions and some mistakes, no doubt, but it's a long and respectable list and represents vast labor in collecting and collating.
